

I have learned that the National Association of Broadcasters is attempting to limit the service of satellite radio. To me it is a public safety issue. As I travel to cities to which I am not familiar, I can easily switch to the appropriate satellite channel I need to get updates. Otherwise, if I am not familiar to the city, I must be constantly switching stations trying to find a channel that even offers traffic updates, and they are sporadic broadcasts at best. This multi tasking as you navigate traffic in a strange city is dangerous.

I am disappointed that the NAB would put their selfish self-interests ahead of the safety of me and my family.

Thank for the opportunity to comment.
